New York Fine Art Auction captures the $5,000 and under art market.

New York City, NY January 8th, 2016 - New York Fine Art Auction is filling a void in the art world. The big auctions are way too rich for the basic art collector. John C. Kuchera, the curator for The New York Art Auction said, "You have to make people feel comfortable and relaxed when they are thinking of collecting art. One of the best ways is to start off small - we have artworks for as little as $60. People have the chance to view and bid online and to come to a real gallery viewing in New York City. If the bidder wins, they can take the artwork home in person or we can ship it".

The current New York Fine Art Auction is running online from January, 1st to February, 10th 2016.

The Gallery Viewing is on February, 10th 2016 from 4-9pm.

at: The Lazy Susan Gallery 191 Henry Street, New York City, NY 10002
